Nelson County's tourism industry is welcoming

The beauty and history of My Old Kentucky Home is known by people throughout the country.

Many people have delighted in the story, romance, music, dancing and costumes of Stephen Foster — The Musical.

They've learned about this area's rich history of bourbon and tobacco, and ridden the rails of times past.

My Old Kentucky Home, Stephen Foster - The Musical and the wealth of bourbon are only a few of the major tourist attractions that lure people to Bardstown.

And those in the tourism industry know visitors have gone home and told of their pleasant experiences in Bardstown.

They — and friends and family — have returned many times over, keeping tourism alive and strong in Nelson County.

Those in the tourism industry strive to keep that welcoming, American small-town spirit in place, while offering a variety of things to do.

That combination of history and here-and-now has apparently paid off, with the area remaining a popular destination for thousands of vacationers each year.

Tourism brings over $63 million into Nelson County's economy every year, according to Dan Bennett, executive director of the Bardstown-Nelson County Tourist and Convention Commission.

on

Visitors don't care much about the dollar figures, though.

Instead, people are more interested in strolling the streets of downtown Bardstown, taking in the sights and browsing among the many antique and gift shops.

Bardstown's restored, historic homes are enough of an attraction for many. Others enjoy the horse-drawn carriage rides around town.

They like to relive the elegance and charm of a bygone era when they tour My Old Kentucky Home.

They experience firsthand the magic reputed to have inspired famed composer Stephen Foster to write "My Old Kentucky Home," which became the official state song.

Visitors and local residents alike revel in the musical, which runs in an outdoor theater during summer evenings under the stars.

Several of the local bourbon distilleries offer free tours, showing the age-old process of making Kentucky bourbons including Jim Beam, Very Old Barton, Heaven Hill and Maker's Mark.

Nelson County is, after all, the Bourbon Capital of the World.

Bardstown even has its own extensive and impressive bourbon history museum.

Other museums show art, wildlife, dolls and miniature soldiers.

The Civil War Museum in Bardstown is becoming one of the most impressive in the country for Civil War enthusiasts. The 7,000-square-foot facility has state-of-the-art display areas.

New features that branch out from the Civil War Museum include a museum portraying the life of women, especially women nurses during the Civil War. On the same grounds is the Old Bardstown Village, which has log cabins depicting different segments of life in the pioneer days.

Nelson County's many weekend festivals, encompassing arts and crafts, dolls, music and bourbon, bring thousands to Nelson County each year.

"Nelson County has over 24 events and 23 attractions," Bennett said. "That's significant for an area this size."

Others may want to drive the roads of Nelson County, marveling at the beauty of the countryside, particularly splendid in the fall, when the knobs are washed in reds, oranges and yellows.

People may prefer to spend the day fishing at Sympson Lake or walking or biking along tree-lined trails at Bernheim Arboretum and Research Forest.

Perhaps a night at one of several campgrounds or a day at the park is in order.

Visitors and residents alike enjoy riding the rails of southern Nelson County aboard steam or diesel engines at the Kentucky Railway Museum in New Haven, or dining in style aboard My Old Kentucky Dinner Train in Bardstown.

Each community offers a variety of worthwhile places to visit.

First-class accommodations abound, alluring people to stay more than one day.

There are more than 600 rooms, including motels, hotels and a plethora of elegant, peaceful bed and breakfast inns.

Local residents and visitors alike will find a vast selection of eateries, with some 75 eating establishments ranging from fine dining to home-style cooking to fast food.

"Bardstown has been in the tourism business for the last 50 years or more," Bennett said. "My Old Kentucky Home opened in the 1920s. Ever since then people have been visiting Bardstown for its historic attractions."

Tourism also is responsible for more than 1,200 jobs in Nelson County, including employees of attractions, motels and restaurants.

Those employees, in turn, do their banking, home buying and other buying locally.

The tourist commission's job is to promote tourism in Nelson County, and is supported through meal and room taxes.

The amount of restaurant tax money raised has gone up every year. In the 1991-92 year, restaurant taxes accounted for $149,747 and 1998-99 year it accounted for $221,824. Already in 1999-00, $118,008 has been collected from the restaurant tax.

Room taxes — paid by those staying in motels and inns in Nelson County — is used to promote the many tourism-related activities and sites in Nelson County. That amount increased from $80,579 in 1991-92 to $122,589 in 1998-99. Already in the 1999-00 year, $82,471 has been collected.

The convention business is increasing as well, as local hotels have invested in providing meeting areas and combining forces to offer more for meeting planners.

Bardstown is now being chosen as a retreat by many conventioners, as a place to find activities of enjoyment, including four golf courses.

Realizing the potential, the tourist commission has been pushing for more convention business.

Many industries and other businesses are searching for good places for workshops and retreats.

Bardstown's location and many attractions make it desirable for conventions, bringing in more every year.

The increase in conventions adds more revenue to the slower tourism months of January, February and March.

The tourist commission has discussed the future possibility of either building a convention center or convincing a private company to build one here.

PLG-TV in Bardstown is Nelson County's local cable TV station. PLG offers local programming 24 hours a day, seven days a week on channel 13 on the cable system operated by the city of Bardstown. PLG-TV also sells 30-second commercials seen locally on six national cable networks -- CNN, ESPN, TNN, USA, Lifetime and HGTV.

Much of the time, PLG-TV 13's programming consists of local news and sports headlines, time, temperature and weather forecast, lottery numbers, classified ads, public service announcements and advertisements from area businesses.

However, history was made on Tuesday, June 1, 1999, when PLG-TV 13, owned and operated by The Kentucky Standard, Bardstown's tri-weekly newspaper, presented the community's first locally produced television newscast.

The nightly 15-minute newscast, PLG News 13, seen on channel 13 of the Bardstown and New Haven cable TV systems, features local news, sports and weather. It's anchored by Tom Isaac, PLG operations manager, a 30-year broadcast veteran. Isaac also serves as news director while PLG-TV general manager Kim Huston is the newscast's executive producer. John Coulter and Rick Marshall serve as co-producers and editors. Advertising representative Ann vonRoenn doubles as special segment producer.

The newscast airs Monday through Friday at 6 p.m. Videotaped shortly before its first airing each evening, the newscast is repeated on the hour through 11 p.m.

News 13 is just the first of several local programming additions. In June 1999, PLG-TV 13 videotaped for later broadcast the three local high school graduation ceremonies. In August, the cable station began its local high school game of the week with play-by-play with Scott Cederholm and color commentary by Doug Johnson. The game of the week joined PLG's popular weekly news magazine show, "On Location." The program, hosted by former local radio personality and now PLG-TV general manager Kim Huston, features stories about local people and events.

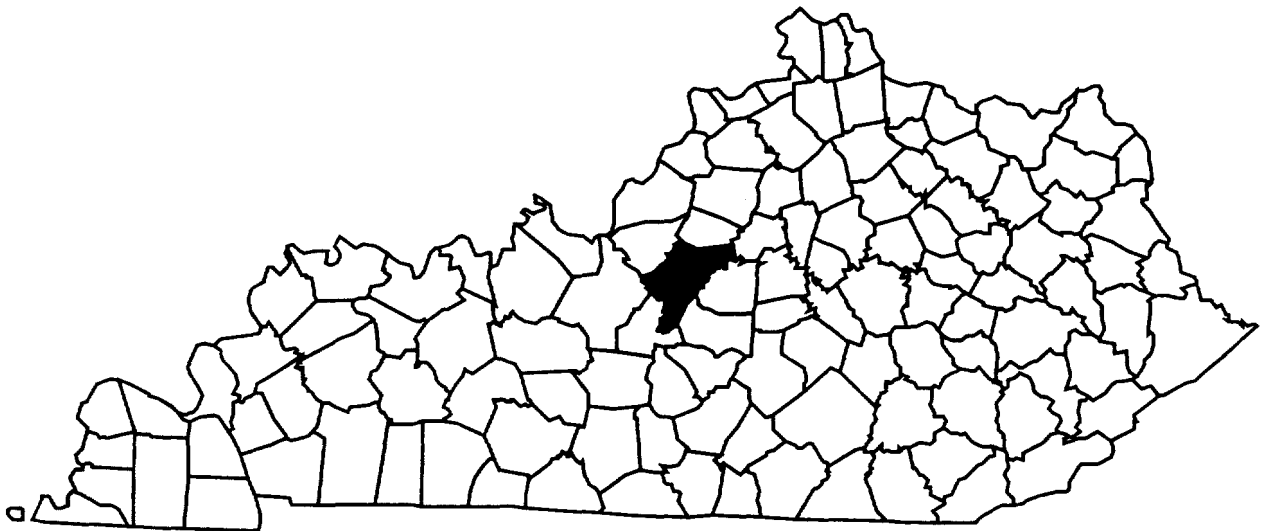

PLG also operates a video production company. Let us produce your company's 30-second TV spot or video.
